Habitat for Humanity New York City expands to Westchester County

The nation's leading affordable homeownership nonprofit will listen to the community in designing services, working in partnership with local families and leaders committed to safe, decent, and affordable homes for all residents

Habitat for Humanity Restore Donation Pick-Up Area Now Includes Westchester

NEW YORK (Oct. 28, 2020) – Habitat for Humanity New York City (Habitat NYC) is expanding its services to Westchester County (Westchester), New York, extending its footprint beyond the five boroughs for the first time in its nearly 40-year history.

“We look forward to listening to and learning from housing professionals in communities all around Westchester County, and ultimately to working with them to increase access to safe and affordable homeownership,” said Karen Haycox, CEO. “Habitat NYC has a proven track-record that includes not only our traditional volunteer-led homebuilding efforts, but also more complex and innovative construction and housing preservation solutions that allow us to reach families at a much greater scale. We will bring both of these approaches to Westchester, to serve as many families as we can and we will be counting on Westchester county residents from all walks of life to join us in our efforts to assist the more than 140,000 families across the county who struggle to keep a roof overhead.”

“Habitat NYC has built a strong foundation as a builder of homes and community across four decades of service,” said Adrienne Goolsby, Habitat for Humanity International’s senior vice president for the U.S. & Canada. “We have full confidence that Habitat NYC has the strength, credibility and commitment to help tackle the growing housing needs in Westchester County. Habitat NYC presented a comprehensive plan that shows they will listen to the community in designing their services, and work in partnership with families seeking safe, decent and affordable homes.”

“I am pleased, on behalf of the people of Westchester, to welcome Habitat for Humanity back to the County,” said George Latimer, Westchester County Executive. “We look forward to working with them to create more affordable housing opportunities. Habitat for Humanity brings with them a wealth of knowledge and experience. They have made significant progress in New York City and we are looking forward to seeing how we might apply some of those models to Westchester.”

Habitat NYC's approach in Westchester includes the same patient, listen-first attitude undergirding their success in New York City. Habitat sees the 2019 Westchester County Housing Needs Assessment as an outline of the opportunities and challenges on which to partner with government, business, and community groups, related to:

- Transit-oriented development (TOD),
- Adaptive re-use of faith-based and government-owned properties,
- Accessory dwelling unit (ADU) implementation,
- Community land trust establishment, and
- Zoning and land use ordinance reform.

“As a 30-year resident of and affordable homebuilder in Westchester, I am acutely aware of the demands for affordable housing in the county and for ways for residents to get involved,” said Peter Murray, board member of Habitat NYC and Chair of its newly established Westchester County Advisory Board. “With Habitat NYC's new service area, we have a true opportunity to meet both of these needs. Having served on the Habitat NYC board for the last decade, I know that we will empower residents who long to participate in solving this housing crisis. Habitat NYC has improved the lives of thousands of New York City residents and is now going to do the same in Westchester.”

Habitat NYC will engage with community stakeholders across the county in a listening tour of the affordable housing landscape, of the needs and gaps and how Habitat NYC can best support local efforts.

Over time, Habitat NYC will build on these engagements, seeking opportunities to advance joint ventures and other significant collaborations, to build local expertise and harness the resources of Habitat NYC to serve generations of Westchester residents through strong, stable affordable homeownership and rental opportunities.

“The Housing Action Council welcomes Habitat for Humanity New York City to Westchester and its not-for-profit housing community,” said Rose Noonan, Executive Director of Housing Action Council, a leading Westchester-based non-profit that works to increase affordable housing in the county. “By bringing resources, expertise and a housing delivery system, they will complement the work of others and increase affordable homeownership opportunities. We look forward to partnering with Habitat to respond to Westchester’s needs.”

HABITAT FOR HUMANITY RESTORE DONATION PICK-UP AREA NOW INCLUDES WESTCHESTER

Beginning today Habitat NYC’s donation pick-up area includes Westchester County. Habitat NYC is exploring partnerships for donation drop-offs as they prepare to open a second Habitat ReStore location in the region. Habitat ReStores are independently owned reuse stores operated by local Habitat for Humanity affiliates. ReStores accept donations and sell home improvement items to the public at a fraction of the retail price. The Woodside, Queens ReStore location has been the top-selling store in terms of dollar per square foot in the nation for the past three years. Made possible by the ReStore’s experienced staff and volunteers, Habitat NYC seeks to duplicate this success in Westchester.

A former Habitat for Humanity affiliate based in New Rochelle discontinued operations as part of Habitat’s affiliate network in July 2018. Habitat NYC is an independent Habitat affiliate, and its work in Westchester County is not connected to the previous organization.
